Current state and federal legal definitions of the above prohibited bases of discrimination shall be followed, when applicable. D. Academic Freedom and Responsibility.

In adopting the following statements concerning academic freedom and responsibility, the Board affirms that academic freedom should not be abridged or abused and joins the numerous other organizations which have endorsed such principles.

1. Academic Freedom.

Institutions of higher education are conducted for the common good and not to further the interest of either the individual faculty member or the institution as a whole. The common good depends upon the free search for knowledge and truth and its free exposition. Academic freedom is essential to these purposes and applies to teaching, research, and publication. Academic freedom in research is fundamental to the search for knowledge and truth. Academic freedom in teaching is fundamental for the protection of the rights of the faculty member in teaching and of the student to freedom in learning. Academic freedom in publication is fundamental to foster an environment of intellectual curiosity and dialogue. This freedom carries with its duties and responsibilities correlative with these rights.

- a. Faculty members are entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication if the results, subject to the adequate performance of their other academic duties; but research for pecuniary return should be based upon an understanding with the authorities of the institution.
- b. Faculty members are entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing their subjects, but they should be careful not to persistently introduce into their teaching controversial matters having no relation to their subject.
- c. College or university faculty members are citizens, members of a learned profession, and officers of an educational institution. When they speak or write as a citizen, on matters of public concern they should be free from institutional censorship or discipline, but their special position in the community imposes special obligations. As a person of learning and an educational officer, they should remember that the public may judge their profession and their institution by their utterances. Hence, they should at all times be accurate, should exercise appropriate restraint, should show respect for the opinions of others, and should indicate that they are not institutional spokespersons.
- d. In accordance with 110 ILCS 665/10-155, all faculty and staff members are free to communicate views on any matter of public or private concern to any branch of the state or federal government or any member thereof provided that the employee does not represent that her or she speaks for or on behalf of the university unless otherwise authorized. Faculty and staff members may also:

1. display political buttons, stickers, or patches provided that such display by faculty members in instructional settings is relevant to the instructional purpose;
2. attend partisan political rallies provided that the faculty or staff member is not on duty; and
3. display partisan bumper stickers on his or her vehicle.

(Revised January 22, 2010)

2. Academic Responsibility.

Membership in the academic community imposes on students, faculty members, and administrations an obligation to respect the dignity of others, to acknowledge the right to express differing opinions, and to foster and defend intellectual honesty, freedom of inquiry and instruction, and free expression both on and off campus. The expression of dissent and the attempt to produce change, therefore, may not be carried out in ways that injure individuals, damage institutional facilities, or disrupt the classes being taught at the University. Speakers on campus must not only be protected from violence, but also given an opportunity to be heard. Those seeking to call attention to grievances must not do so in ways that significantly impede the functions of the institution. Students are entitled to an atmosphere conducive to learning and to even-handed treatment in all aspects of the teacher- student relationship. Faculty members may not refuse to enroll or teach students on the grounds of the student's beliefs or the possible uses to which the student may put the knowledge gained from a course. Students should not feel forced by authority inherent in the instructional role to make particular personal choices as to political or social action. Evaluation of students and the award of credit must be based on professionally assessed academic performance and not on matters irrelevant to that performance, such as personality, race, religion, political views, and personal beliefs.

It is the faculty members' mastery of their subjects and their own scholarship that entitle them to their classrooms and to freedom in the presentation of their subjects. Thus, it is improper for faculty members to persistently introduce material having no relation to their subjects, or to fail to present the subject matter of their course as announced to their students and as approved by the faculty in their collective responsibility for the curriculum.

Because academic freedom has traditionally included the faculty members' full freedom as a citizen, most faculty members face no insoluble conflicts between the claims of politics, social action, and conscience, on the one hand, and the claims and expectations of their students, colleagues, and institutions, on the other. If such conflicts become acute, and the faculty members' attention to their obligations as citizens and moral agents precludes the fulfillment of substantial academic obligations, they cannot escape the responsibility of the choice, but should either request leaves of absence or resign their academic positions.

E. Participation in University Governance.

1. Shared Participation.

To better promote shared participation in responsible and wise decision-making and to ensure channels of communication, the University shall provide for elected campus organizations, the structures of which shall be determined by the constituencies they represent and approved by the President. Except as limited by the scope of collective bargaining negotiations between the Board and the academic employees and the requirement of good faith collective bargaining, the appropriate and duly constituted committees of faculty government shall participate in the decision-making process of the University in the following areas:

- a. Academic policies concerning but not limited to teaching, research, academic standards and curriculum.
- b. Creation of administrative positions at the level of Dean and Vice President and selection of administrative officers for such positions as well as of the President of the University.
- c. Policies relating to student life, conduct, and discipline, following consultation with the Student Government.
- d. Planning and the determination of priorities for the conduct and development of the University.
- e. Basic policies with regard to campus planning and facilities construction and utilization.

2. Council on University Planning and Budget ("CUPB").

The University shall establish a university-wide budget committee composed of faculty, staff, and students selected so as to provide representation of academic and support areas consistent with a practical committee size. CUPB shall participate in making recommendations to the President and the Boards with respect to:

- a. The setting of program priorities in the University budget.

- b. Periodic review of the University budget.
- c. Transfers of significant amounts among internal budget items.

To operate effectively, CUPB members should familiarize themselves with previous budgets and with existing budget formulas; familiarize themselves with the data reporting procedures used in the University; and develop a good working knowledge of the financial operation of the University. To aid CUPB in its functions, the appropriate administrative officers shall keep CUPB members and all fiscal agents informed concerning budget formulas, budgetary procedures, and calendars as they are formulated at the University and higher levels. It is expected that broad committee representation will provide maximum opportunity for a voice for the faculty, staff, and students as a whole.

3. Constitutions.

The University's three (3) senates, faculty, staff, and students, shall each develop constitutions for their own duly established government organizations. Such constitutions shall be reviewed and approved by the President and submitted to the Board for review. Such constitutions shall be consistent with Board policy and shall ensure the democratic involvement of the constituencies so represented, and shall be placed in the university library and posted on the University's official website for interested persons.

F. Students.

As members of the academic community, University students are encouraged to develop critical thinking skills and to engage in a sustained and independent search for knowledge and truth. The freedom to learn depends upon appropriate opportunities and conditions in the classroom, on the campus, and in larger community. The responsibility to secure and respect conditions conducive to the freedom to learn is shared by all members of the academic community. Therefore, the University shall provide means by which students participate in university governance. Students shall be guaranteed due process in disciplinary proceedings and freedom from discrimination based upon race, color, sex, religion, age, national origin, ancestry, marital status, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, or any other basis of discrimination precluded by federal and state statutes. Current state and federal legal definitions of the above prohibited bases of discrimination shall be followed, when applicable. Appropriate and duly constituted committees of student government may develop and propose to the President, or such other administrative officers as the President may designate from time to time, advisory recommendations with respect to student concerns.

G. Selection and Evaluation of the President.

1. Selection of the President

- a. The Board shall determine the qualifications, experience, and characteristics it seeks in a President. The Board will determine the process it shall follow in selecting a President in accordance with State law. The Board shall determine whether to determine to function as a committee of the whole in process of selecting the President.
- b. The Board shall decide the composition and function of any advisory committee and the terms and conditions of employment of any consultants used in the process of selecting a President. Various constituencies of the campus community shall be represented on the advisory committee in order to ensure broad, diverse membership.
- c. The Board shall select and interview the final candidates for the position of President, providing members of the campus community opportunities to meet all finalists.
- d. The Board shall appoint the President and the President shall serve at the Board's pleasure unless the contract of employment specifies otherwise.

2. Evaluation of the President

- a. The Board shall review annually the performance of the President before the end of the last quarter in the fiscal year.
- b. The material used in the President's annual performance review shall include: (1) a statement of the President's goals and objectives, (2) feedback received from stakeholders including board members, members of President Council, Mayor of Charleston, and leaders of Faculty Senate, Student Senate, and Staff Senate, and (3) such other material as specified by the Board. Additional material may be submitted at the discretion of the President.

(Revised September 11, 2020)

ARTICLE III. ADOPTION, AMEDNMENT, OR REPEAL OF POLICIES

The Board's governing policies may be adopted, amended, or repealed at any regular Board meeting by a majority vote of the voting members then serving on the Board. Requests for the adoption, amendment, or repeal of governing Policies shall be submitted to the Chairperson. The Chairperson shall report such requests with recommendations for action to the Board. Board action on the proposal shall not be taken earlier than the next regular meeting following first reading. When circumstances warrant, the Board may waive the first reading. The Chairperson will make the proposal available to interested parties through the library. No less than (10) days prior to the Board meeting at which action is to be taken, members of the faculty, staff, and student body may submit their views and comments in writing, via a written correspondence or email, to the Chairperson for distribution to the Board together with a recommendation for action on the proposal.

ARTICLE IV. RESERVATION OF POWERS

The Board is charged by law with full responsibility for governing the University. Although the Board properly and necessarily delegates authority to designated officers of the institution, it cannot divest itself of its ultimate legal responsibility. Accordingly, the Board expressly reserves to itself the power to act on its own initiative in all matters affecting the University.
